My colleague Luís Mota de Castro is retiring after a long and commendable academic career, and I will maintain my role as Editor-in-Chief, together with Gurpreet Dhillon. It has been a privilege to edit this Journal for more than half a decade with Professor Mota de Castro, during which we have both served a Journal that has been in existence since 1993. Published by ISEG, Universidade de Lisboa, the Journal is always open to receive papers on innovative ideas and management technologies which can be submitted anywhere in the world.

We have recently reformulated the Journal's Board, to increase its skills and scope, and have created the role of Associate Editor, who is responsible for a specific area of knowledge in Management. Accordingly, the Journal will continue to be a generalist scientific Journal in Management, while developing an important set of competences in specific sub-disciplines. We are very pleased to announce that the following colleagues from ISEG, Universidade de Lisboa, have accepted our invitation to become Associate Editors:

- Carlos Costa is the Associate Editor for Information Management Systems and Operations Management;
- Eduarda Soares coordinates the research area of Human Resources Management and Organisational Behaviour;
- Luís Mota de Castro, who will not fully retire (at least from the Journal), will continue to support the Journal in the research area of Strategic Management and Marketing;
- Raquel Gaspar is the Associate Editor for Finance, and;
- Sofia Lourenço is to support the Journal for research in Accounting, Auditing, and Taxation.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank and congratulate the above colleagues for joining the Journal's Board. I am certain that these Associate Editors will welcome contact from potential authors in their respective areas of expertise.

Concerning other news from the Journal, I am pleased to inform that the EJMS has been accepted for inclusion in important scientific indexing services, including Cabell's White List and Ebsco Information Services. Furthermore, since the last Issue, all papers published have been attributed a specific digital object identifier (DOI) and are listed in Crossref, which thus assures that they can be identified and acknowledged on Orcid.
